GUEST EDITORIAL: (Signed) Conrad von Metzke

Publisher & Editor of Costaguana, Disc Lya, & Verbal Chaos, Ltd.

"Conrad von Metzke hereby publicly declares that he will NOT under any circumstances, join or support a Diplomacy Federation run by Rod Walker. In fact, he will work hard against it. The reason for this is Rod Walker himself. Walker has shown by his asinine, idiotic, and false attacks on Charles Reinsel that he, Walker, is incapable of handling such a responsibility. A Diplomacy Federation would need responsible leaders, not foolish children. On all points in the Walker-Reinsel Controversy I defend and support Charles N. Reinsel, and suggest that other people of conscience do so too."

"P.S. Reinsel's Rating System may not be the best, but so far it's the only one that works!"

Letter Section: "Darn! I wanted to play in your game very badly."

Oh well... PLEASE start another game as soon as you feel you can."

Editor:-Do the readers of Big Brother want to make it an even Dozen games? If John McCallum and five others (readers or newcomers) actually want to play in a game with the one and only Conrad von Metzke than write and let me know now. Please send no money as I will not ask for it until I am convinced a "Dirty Dozen" game should be started. I'd like to see John Smythe, John Koning & etc. in a good game.

BIG BROTHER #76:

A Letter From The Front: Part V

Wiges, Germany Feb. 23, 1919

We stayed there from Aug. 7 to 24 and then we went back to take part in the Saint Mihiel drive as the First Division was to take Mt. Sec. which was considered almost impossible by the French.

On the morning of Sept. 12 the Attack started. We easily captured Mt. Sec. and advanced the Bosh miles beyond. We spent two weeks in the rear and then went to the Argonne Woods. This was the worst of them all.

The drive was started by green troops and as the resistance stiffened seasoned troops were thrown in. The First Division lay in reserve from Oct. 11 to 4. Their job was to drive the Bosh off a chain of hills which was the key to the German Lines.

The ground here almost impossible but in eight days we had advanced seven kilometers and as the Germans had orders not to retreat they were killed where they stood. I saw places where it was almost impossible to walk without stoping on a dead Bosh.

It was here that the Engineers captured a hill and hold it till the doughboys arrived. Either the First or Second Battalion has been in every fight that the Division was in.

Our motto was "work always, fight when necessary".

We felt proud when over we were shoulder to shoulder with our brave doughboys and to be able to fight with the best of them.

We were relieved here by the 42 Division and after 2 weeks rest we again hit the front at Beaumont and Mouson. This was the hardest two weeks I ever put in as we were on the go night and day. Then on Nov. 5, 1918 the First Division went over the top and on the 6th.

and 7th we drove them from near Beaumont.

On the night of the 6th, we made a forced march to the Gates of Sedan 30 kilometers away. We reached there the next morning. D Company was with the advance guard. This was the hardest march we ever had for since Nov. 5 we had scarcely any sleep and not much show.

Some days we would get a meal and some days none. The black bread of the Germans tasted good to us, then. Also we were nearly dead for sleep. I think I must have fell asleep a dozen times walking that night. That was the hardest job of all to keep awake.

The next day our Engineer Company got some sleep but the Captain wanted to locate a bridge across a canal which was then held by the Germans. (Cont.)
